TESL Canada Health Benefit: TESL Canada is pleased to announce the addition of a health benefit to its members. As you are automatically a member of TESL Canada with TESL NB membership, for more information, please follow the attached link or email info@brunswickfinancial.ca https://www.tesl.ca/membership/membership-benefits.html

Winners of the 3 TESL NB PL bursaries to attend the ATESL Conference Oct. 15-16 are: Vicki MacDonald, Shannon Despres and Bryna Dickson Roper. I hope September was a good month, exciting with the new school year, and not too stressful. October has started with beautiful weather, crisp sunny days and fall temperatures. I wish you all the best in the coming months.

Donna Hoffman, President TESL NB
Congratulations to Jack Watson - recipient of the TESL NB lifetime membership award

Retirement and Recognition Jon (Jack) Watson (BA, BEd, MA) started working at the UNBF English Language Programme in 1983. Since that time, he has served in many roles and is currently a Facilitator/Administrator and E-Learning Coordinator. Jack has been part of TESL NB for decades and in the late 90’s served as President. Jack played a distinguished role as part of TESOL’s Computer-Assisted Language Learning Interest Section team and also served as Chair of the Electronic Village Events Coordinator and Webcast Organizer. Jack’s passion and dedication to the field of ESOL has been demonstrated in his invaluable contribution and exemplary commitment to the University of New Brunswick English Language Programme, TESL NB, and TESOL International Association.

The TESL NB executive wishes Jack well in his retirement and in recognition of his dedication to the field of ESOL, we are presenting him with a lifetime Membership to TESL NB.

Thank you Jack!

“When you know your why, your what becomes more clear and impactful.”

~Michael Jr.

Name: Darlene Whitehouse-Sheehan

Position: Part-time Instructor and Supervisor at St. Thomas University

My favourite thing about these two positions is having opportunities to share instructional practices and engage in professional conversations with teacher candidates about current successes and challenges they are experiencing as they embark upon their teaching journey. As a former educator in the public education system, I find the enthusiasm and innovative ideas of teacher candidates to be inspiring. I love hearing about how they engage their students and personalize learning while creating an inclusive learning environment in their classrooms. I learn much from them and appreciate their openness to professional collaboration.

Something I recently learned is to design and teach an online course. Initially, it was a somewhat intimidating experience, however, as the process unfolded, I was reminded regularly of an important teaching principle that making mistakes is indeed a part of learning. The kindness of teacher candidates and colleagues in helping me with technical difficulties is gratifying, and a great reminder that as teachers we do not need to have all the answers.

Professional book recommendation:

The 6 Principles for Exemplary Teaching of English Learners K-12 by the TESOL International Association Writing Team

- Deborah Short, Helene Becker, Nancy Cloud, Andrea B. Hellman, and Linda New Levine.

I would recommend this book for a couple of reasons. I really appreciate how the authors envelop five of the teaching principles and related practices around the importance of “knowing your learners’. This resonates deeply with me as I believe knowing your learners is foundational to other practices. I also find the explanations of the teaching principles are clear and enhanced with classroom examples which bring the ideas to life. Finally, I really like how the authors thread the sixth principle, the importance of working collaboratively, throughout the other exemplary practices.

Favourite Quote:

“No one can know all there is to know about educating diverse learners and, collectively all of us are smarter than one of us alone.” (Lave & Wenger, 1991 cited by authors of the book, p. 63)
Personal reading recommendation:
The Book Woman of Troublesome Creek by Kim Michelle Richardson

Favourite Quote:
“Well, them cloths are a lot like folks. Ain’t much difference at all. Some is more spiffed up than others, some stiffer, and still, some softer. There’s the colourful and dull, ugly and pretty, old and new ‘uns. But in the end we’s all fabric, cut from His cloth... I know you’re a Blue, but these old eyes don’t care, nor feels the colors none. It feels the heart, child.”

The story is set in Kentucky in the 1930s where an historical, blue-skinned young woman engages in the Pack Horse library service. She demonstrates tremendous commitment and perseverance to bring reading materials and literacy to impoverished mountain folks while at the same time contending with oppressive intolerance and poverty. It is a powerful and emotionally gripping story with strong messages for the reader.

Goal over the next few months:
I most recently decided when interactions with others are somewhat limited due to the pandemic that each week I would reach out to a friend or colleague with whom I have not been in contact for several years. To date, it has been wonderful to rekindle such acquaintances. I have made a list of names that takes me to the middle of November and am hoping I will continue my goal until at least the end of the year.

Something that inspires me is the understanding and wisdom of young children and youth. I spend a lot of time with my grandchildren who are between the ages of seven and nine and I am always amazed at their openness to try new ideas or activities, the creative solutions they offer to challenges or problems, as well as the honest perspectives they frequently share. I believe we can learn a lot by genuinely listening to children and youth. To me, they are often inspirational.
